EXHIBITS

Snapshots in Time: Nostalgia and Memory
On exhibit until mid-December 2027

Inspired by stories and recollections of Cambridge residents, this exhibit invites visitors to step into the places where everyday life unfolded and to consider how these spaces shape both our community's and our personal identities. Nostalgia has a way of connecting us across time and geography. Think of the people and places that live on in your memory - and consider how the memories you're creating today may one day be treasured by those you hold close.

In this act of burial - Part II
On exhibit until July 31, 2026

Artist Meghan Harder uses an iPad to retrace digitized artifacts, creating digital meditations on fraktur art— featuring birds, flowers, hearts, horses, and stars—that will be installed on the exterior light boxes of Schneider Haus. Her compositions echo both the contours of the original motifs and the geometry of the building's façade, even as the historical objects themselves remain unseen. This distance is heightened by her use of modern CMYK color against the naturally pigmented originals, making her misty drawings feel like ghosts that glow from the present.
